An easy-to-read display screen is a key feature in a VHF. The screens of the radios in this test varied in size, amount of information displayed, and readability. A few examples include the Standard Horizon GX1500S's large combination segmented and dot-matrix screen with icons on the top row; the Cobra F80's large screen, which offers a lot of information, including segmented channel numbers and several rows of dot-matrix information; and the Icom M304's small, segmented screen.
